Star of the Week Ollie

for some lovely descriptive work in Literacy
Well Done!

Homework

There are 2 small jobs for homework this week. The first one is to practice retelling the story of 'Little Charlie' using our story map. The second job is to also complete the weather diary for Saturday & Sunday.

The weather diaries need to be returned to school on the Monday please.

There is also another 'Storytime With Jesus' for the children to watch this week.

Literacy

This week in Literacy we have been learning the story of 'Little Charlie.' Charlie lives on the edge of a big city, and one day his mummy sends him on a journey to his grandma's to take her some food.

At the start of the week we had a go at writing our own journey tales. Then we discovered a basket of cakes in the classroom with a map that sent us on a journey to Mrs. White's room.

To help us become more familiar with the story of 'Little Charlie' we created a class story map of the tale and we have been practicing retelling the story using the story map.

Part of our Literacy work has also been about describing different settings, so we have been looking at some different environments and trying to describe them. As a class we created a shared piece of writing describing an magical forest.

Science

This week in Science we have continued to think about the seasons and weather. We have made a rain gauge to be able to measure the amount of rainfall that we have. We shall be using this throughout the year to explore and understand how the seasons play a part in how much rainfall we get.
